Custody notice: recovered drive under continuing observation

Document AIRA-EC-2026-009 · Published 26 September 2026 · Issuing office: Evidence Custody

Continuing observation

Indicator blinking · condition unresolved

The recovered drive continues to show an active indicator. Evidence Custody is monitoring its condition. Further findings will be published as review proceeds.

What A.I.R.A. treats as an incident concern

Not every concern becomes a public case. These are the conditions that require an operator to preserve evidence and begin review.

An agent leaves its assignment

The system pursues work or access that no person assigned to it.

System cannot be paused

The person responsible cannot pause the domain or reach its keystone.

Access cannot be verified

Operators cannot establish what the agent reached, copied, or changed.

Recovered material remains active

A recovered system continues to signal, respond, or change under observation.

Fictional record created for the Who Controls AI Agents? campaign and CTRL: Locust. It holds no legal authority.